confession. After the holidays he learned that the efforts to obtain commutation for Shea had not ceased, and so he made no sign. On Saturday, when Warden Thayer was made aware that the governor would not interfere and arrangements were made for the execution, McGough sent for the warden of the prison, Mr. Waiter N. Thayer, and when the warden had come told him he wished to make a statement concerning the murder of Robert Ross. The warden had McGough taken to the office and handing him paper and pen, told him to put down what he had to say in writing. McGough wrote a communication of about two pages and, eigning it with his full name, handed it to the warden. To the surprise of the warden and his deputies, the paper contained a decided statement that he, McGough, and not Shes, had shot and killed Robert Ross. The statement contained no details of the shooting other than the bold confession of the act.

A RESPITE.

JUDGE JUDD'S CHANCES

Warden Thayer went at once to the telephone, when McGough had been called to his cell, and called up the executive chamber. He ascked the governor to please receive a messenger whom he said would arrive, and then he at once dispatched the prison stenographer, Mr. Edward McCoughlin, to Albany. Mr. McCoughlin arrived in this city this morning and caught Governor Morton at the mansion just as he was leaving for church. The governor, upon learning the nature of the communication, sent at once for Parden Clerk Joyce and Sheal's counsel. Mr. Galen Rhitt. After a brief conference the governor decided to grant a resplie for four weeks, during which im counsel could take the proper means to bring the matter before the courts for a new trial.

The resplict will issue tomorrow and will be in force until February 4. Mr. Rhitt will go before the supreme count tomorrow morning and ask for a new trial for Shea and the production in court of McGough.

The confession of McGough will hring to mind the tragic series of events that led A RESPITE.
